FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Slap Yourself. The Book and Movement.

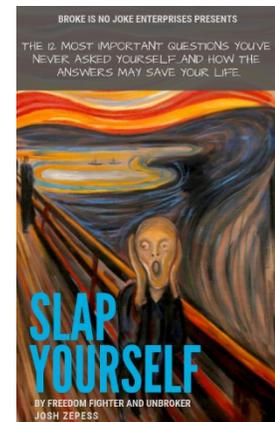

The 12 most important questions you've never asked yourself.

[Orlando, FL, April 2019—] The phone's ringing. It's your life calling. Think you should answer it this time?

A very short book designed for us to spend more time outside of it creating a new path in life than inside. Josh punches and hugs us through more than 12 basic questions that are designed to reveal the real person inside of us and how the answers might save what life we have left. It's the wake-up call that is meant to be answered. Each question brings out the desires, passions, and mental toughness that we've always had, but were too shy or ignorant to admit. It is not designed to solve all your problems, just to help you become the person capable of defining and answering your own. This book is the first step in the movement towards True Freedom.

“Most people live above their means and below their potential. It doesn't have to be that way and it can't stay that way.”

His book will be available on Kickstarter throughout April with Amazon, Apple Book and Bookstore release on May 27, 2019. Visit his site www.slapyourselfbook.com for more details.

Josh Zepess is a corporate America escapee who was blessed with the ultimate wake-up call. After over 35 years of being the good soldier – going to school, getting the multiple degrees, holding the “safe and secure” job, and putting money blindly into his 401(k) – all in the name of succeeding in life, he realized that everything he thought was right, wasn't so right. He was sold the dream of Freedom but living the nightmare of the Rat Race. From Corporate America through independent contractor and franchise business owner, it wasn't long before he became keenly aware of the lack of true Freedom in our free society and felt the calling to build a platform to help people understand and achieve the Freedom that we are killing ourselves to obtain. His realization is called Broke Is No Joke and fulfills the mission as a writer, speaker, and creator.
